

Transcript: Role-Play with Puzzles

Text on screen: Role-Play with Puzzles

Logo: Count, play, explore—for early education.

On screen: Two educators role play together. One plays the role of the educator, the other plays the role of the child. Together, they put together a small puzzle. The first educator starts by pointing out and explaining how the shapes should match.

Educator 1: It kind of fits here, but it needs to be inside the puzzle.

On screen: The first educator points to the contours of the puzzle's outer edge. The second educator picks up the misplaced piece and tries another spot.

Educator 1: Do you think that's inside the puzzle?

On screen: The second educator tries placing another piece in the same spot as before, but they place it upside down.

Educator 1: Yeah, you're turning it. Nice turn! Keep turning. Maybe keep rotating and see how it fits.

On screen: The second educator flips the piece over but places it incorrectly again.

Educator 2: Oh, it's good, it's good!

On screen: The first educator points out the incorrect placement by noting the space left over.

Educator 1: It's good? Look, there's some space here.

Educator 2: Ohh...

Educator 1: Maybe you can push it?

Educator 2: Push it? Same like this one.

On screen: The second educator references another similar piece's placement. She moves it into place, and the two look at each other joyfully.

Educator 1: Same as that one. There you go!

Educator 2: Whoo!

[clapping]

[laughing]

Text on screen: A special thanks to the staff from Educare California at Silicon Valley, without whose help these videos would not have been possible.

Logo: Count, play, explore—for early education.